

Women-positive Games Meetup and Showcase Returns to Sweden's Creative Coast

Stockholm, Sweden :: LadyCADE :: 13th of May, 2016 :: IMMEDIATE RELEASE

LadyCADE - an international series of inclusive gaming events in which women in particular are encouraged to share their passion for games and game-making - will return to open Karlshamn's Creative Coast Festival for a second year, bringing with it a host of games, and a safe-space meetup.

Festivities begin with a casual gathering at Karlshamn's Brädspelskaféet on Sunday the 15th of May, welcoming game players and creators from the local area and far beyond into our women-friendly "fika" gathering. There we will showcase 4 diverse games as part of the LadyCADE Arcade, including a point-and-click exploration of Swedish folklore, a fiendish puzzle game mounted on a hat, a card game of renaissance prestige, and a puzzle-platformer inspired by watercolours and the natural world.

LadyCADE will also play host to these games at the Creative Coast Festival itself, as part of an exhibition of games and digital media at NetPort Science Park on Monday the 16th and Tuesday the 17th of May. There, festival-goers can meet the developers and experience their games first-hand.

Further details of this event and the lineup for LadyCADE Arcade can be found at www.ladycade.org, along with presskit materials.

About

LadyCADE is a series of inclusive gaming events, providing friendly and safe spaces in which women in particular can share their passion for games and game-making. It also serves as a platform for women creators to showcase their games - to fellow gamers, aspiring developers, and the world at large. LadyCADE is a non-profit venture run by Stockholm-based game designer Gemma Thomson, who co-hosts its Sweden-based events along with game developer Anna Jenelius.
